The following order has just been issued from the War Department: By direction of the Secretary of War paragraph 42 of the Regulations is amended to read as follows: "Officers transferred from one corps or arm of service to another on their mutual application shall be nominated for reappointment with rank as of the date of the commission of the junior officer previous to the transfer, and upon confirmation will be recommissioned accordingly. An officer of the lowest grade in any corps or arm of the service who may be transferred on his own application to a vacancy in his grade of the corps or arm will take rank next after the junior officer of the corps or arm to which he is transferred, and will be nominated for reappointment with a new date of rank if necessary to fix his proper position, and upon confirmation will be recommissioned accordingly. These new appointments and commissions will determine the rank of transferred officers in their regiments and corps as well as in the Army."

Why do I drink Tannhauser beer? Because it is the best in the market.

The practice vessel now building at Elizabeth, N. J., for the use of the naval cadets is as yet without a name, although rapidly approaching completion. Some naval officers have suggested that she should be named the George Bancroft, as a fitting tribute to the memory of the great historian, who was the founder of the Naval Academy.

Look out for Faust Bock Beer. Best in the market.

It is understood that the changes contemplated on the Dolphin, which were to fit her for use in blowing up wrecks on the Atlantic Coast, and for the pleasure purposes to which the "Despatch" is now assigned, will not be made. About a month ago the Dolphin was detached from the Squadron of Evolution and ordered out of commission at the Norfolk Yard in order that the changes contemplated could be made. These changes included the building of a deck-house instead of a poop deck. This house will reach from the mainmast clear aft to the taffrail, a space that is almost half the ship's length. In it are to be located a number of state-rooms. These changes, it has been charged, would, if made, greatly improve the Dolphin's value as a war vessel. The Washington correspondent of the Baltimore Sun says: "About a week ago Assistant Secretary Soley and Chief Constructor Wilson, of the Navy, were at the Norfolk Yard looking after the Dolphin's 'fixing up.' To these officials, it is understood, Commander Stirling spoke his mind freely, and warned them that if they did as proposed the Dolphin will be ruined. It is stated he also told them that the changes could not be made without violating a Congressional law, as Congress, in appropriating the money for the Dolphin's construction, stipulated what style of boat she should be—a war vessel to be used as a despatch boat by a squadron commander. Perhaps the Commander's warning will save the Dolphin from being botched up."
